

Must Haves

The Ivy's check list

essentials for successful cloth diapering...

✓ Diapers

If you are planning to use our diaper service, we will provide you with diapers. If you are planning to wash your own diapers, decide which type or style of diaper you'd like to use. We recommend getting a variety of brands and styles to try out so you can see what you like best or using one of our Cloth Diaper Trial Kits.

✓ Snappis or Boingos

With prefold diapers (which we highly recommend for newborns!), you will need Snappis or Boingos to fasten the diaper. If you are using our diaper service, we will provide you with a pack of three Snappis or two Boingos with your service.

✓ Diaper Covers

The diaper cover is the waterproof layer that goes on top of your prefold diaper to prevent leaks and stop blowouts. We recommend 4-6 diaper covers for use with prefold diapers. If you're using our diaper service, you can rent newborn covers to go with your diapers!

✓ Pail Liner

Your pail liner is what you will use on the inside of your diaper pail. A pail liner is included with your diaper service. If you're planning to wash your own diapers, we suggest getting 1-2 pail liners to hold your dirty diapers between washes.

Nice to
Haves

The Ivy's check list

essentials for successful cloth diapering...

✓ Cloth Wipes

Using cloth wipes is a natural extension of cloth diapering. No harsh solution to irritate baby's skin, no running to the store when you're out, no extra waste. You can use our cloth wipes service, purchase your own cloth wipes, or make them yourself. Whichever option you choose, your baby, your planet, and your wallet will win.

✓ Wetbag

Having a wetbag (or 2!) around is great. Your wetbag is what you will use to store your dirty diapers when you're on the go! Whether it's a quick trip to the grocery store or a full day at day care, you'll need a place to store those dirty diapers until you get back home. The wetbag makes the perfect reusable solution.

✓ Diaper Pail

All you need for cloth diapers is a kitchen size trash can. Something with an open mouth so you can drop the dirty diapers right in. Some people prefer foot pedals to open their pail, some people don't. But you really don't need anything fancy. A trash can will do.

✓ Cloth-Friendly Diaper Cream/Wipes Solution

You will need to avoid zinc oxide, cod liver oil (or any fish oil), and petroleum products (i.e., Vaseline) with your cloth diapers, so check the ingredients before purchasing diaper cream. We love Thirsties Booty Love, Angel Baby Bottom Balm and our very own Ivy's Happy Butt Stick for our babies' cloth bottoms.

The Luxuries

The Ivy's check list

these may not be essential, but, boy do we love them...

✓ Diaper Liners

Diaper liners are a life-saver once your baby starts eating solid foods. These flushable, biodegradable liners help get all of the poop off of your diaper (which helps immensely with the smell of your diaper pail or wetbag!). Using flushable liners on the go also prevents you from have to bring the poop home with you. Just flip and flush!

✓ Pail Freshener

You can use baking soda in your diaper pail, but sometimes it's just not enough. For those really smelly diapers, we love Rockin' Green Pail Freshener. Just sprinkle the pail freshener directly in your diaper pail, right on top of your diapers, for a fresh burst of odor fighting rockin' scent.

✓ Diaper Sprayer

If you're using our diaper service, a sprayer is not really needed. But, if you're washing your own diapers at home, a diaper sprayer can really come in handy. Diaper sprayers help get all of the solid waste off your diapers before you put the diapers in your pail.

✓ Spray Pal Splatter Shield

The Spray Pal Splatter Shield is a game changer for spraying the solid waste off of your diapers! The Spray Pal Splatter shield helps get rid of the messy part of cloth diapers. Use full water pressure to get rid of all the poop, but keep the splatter contained and your hands clean. Just spray, rinse, and store all while your bathroom stays clean.